RE: Additional Tuition Credits

We are pleased to announce that the Department of Psychology is able to increase the number of tuition remission credits for all first and second year students in the Applied Development and Human Services Psychology programs to a maximum of 12 credits per semester towards required department coursework. It is our hope that these additional credits will help alleviate the financial burden during your studies toward your degree.

The tuition remission forms for the Fall 2018 semester have been revised and submitted to the Graduate School for these additional credits. You do not need to sign any additional documentation for Fall and the tuition remission forms for Spring 2019 will reflect these additional credits.

Best of luck in your studies this year,
